Good Roads and How to Get Them

The Democratic Plan

To issue bonds to the amount of $1,250,000, pledging the income from the automobile licenses for the purpose of paying the interest and creating a sinking fund.

How it works: The burden of building the roads will fall on those most able to bear it and who use the roads most. The automobile licenses now amount to approximately $75,000 a year and are constantly increasing. No extra levy on anybody will be necessary. With the supplementary aid of the federal road appropriation, an amount will be available sufficient to criss-cross the state with an up-to-date highway system equal to the best in the older and wealthier states of the union.

The Bursum Plan

The republican platform does not outline any definite plan for raising funds for road-building, but Mr. Bursum in his campaign speeches proposes to increase the taxes of the people by one mill for a period of ten years, raising $200,000 a year and anticipating the levies by the issuance of certificates of indebtedness.

How it works: Mr. Bursum forgets that certificates of indebtedness can not, under the constitution, be issued in excess of $200,000. But even if that were not so, his plan means the laying of an added burden of direct taxation on people already too heavily taxed. Not only that, it means that the people who pay their taxes will be building good roads for the enjoyment and pleasure of people who let their tax "-ide." Fine business, for instance, for Mr. Bursum, who in ten years paid only $88.26 in taxes out of a total of more than $5,000 paid to the state and county.

And Then Again:

Do you want to trust the road building of the state to a man who has the record as a road builder that Holm O. Bursum haswho is responsible for six miles of the Socorro - Mogollon road constructed at a cost of $27,000, forty per cent of which went for supplies purchased of Mr. Bursum's corporation and a large part of the remainder of which went for salaries to Mr. Bursum's political friends during a period when no road building was being done?
